FUND RISK FACTORS

The stated aims of the fund are not guaranteed. The value of investments and any income from them may fall as well as rise and investors may not get back the original amount invested. If the fund invests in overseas markets, changes in currency exchange rates may cause the value of investments to fall or rise. Investing in emerging markets involves a high degree of risk and should be seen as long term in nature. Where a fund is invested with another life company by means of a reinsurance arrangement, the risk of default by the reinsurer is borne by policyholders who invest in the relevant fund.

Liquidity risk is the risk that some investments cannot be sold as quickly as others. To give your pension the opportunity to grow for the long term, the fund invests in a range of different types of assets. These include assets known as 'private market' investments, which are not listed on regulated markets, such as stock exchanges. For example, this may include investments in physical assets like housing, infrastructure, energy production and natural capital. This means some of your pension investments will be less 'liquid' than others and cannot be bought and sold as quickly as traditional investments like stocks and shares. Whilst this makes them suitable for supporting the long-term growth of your pension, it also means there may be, on very limited occasions, a waiting period imposed on cashing in your pension e.g. transferring your pension or taking your pension in one lump sum at short notice.

WHAT AFFECTS THE FUND PRICE

The fund is single priced and is set daily. All purchases and sales on a given day take place at this price. The fund price may be subject to adjustment on any given day to ensure it is investors trading who bear any transaction costs. This means on any given date, a member purchasing units in this fund will receive an identical unit price to a member who is selling units in the fund. The fund price is influenced by a number of external factors, including but not limited to, performance of the active manager; changes in sterling foreign exchange rates; changes in interest rates and inflation; economic factors which may affect the stock market for this region; market view of the likelihood of bond issuers not meeting their financial obligations; political activity; and ability and ease of buying and selling properties at their market value.

In the event of a redemption suspension being invoked by a third party (the underlying investment), Mobius Life Limited reserves the right to delay cancellation of the units in the fund for the same period as the underlying investment.
